The Business of the Week Not Quite Equal to that of the Same Date in '91.

The Grain Market Continues Very Dull, Wheat Being Firm, Corn Quiet and Oats Weak-Quotations on General Merchandise.

MONEY AND STOCKS.

Unfavorable Weather for Retailers-Balances and Clearings for the Day and Week. As predicted the clearings for the week fell below those of the corresponding week in 1891. The comparisons of the current business with that of like date of last year show the following:

For the day, clearings. $589,811.68 $697,253.34 For the day, balances. 45,668.08 87,420.78 For the week, clear'gs. 3,447,832.62 3,487,600.04 For the week, balanc's. 194,524.82 356,993.19 The two or three days of cold and windy weather have had a marked effect on the deposits of down-town retailers, business with this class of dealers being lighter than when more propitions weather prevails.

NEW YORK QUOTATIONS. At New York, Saturday, money on call was easy at 14 to 2 per cent., the last loan being made at 2, closing offered at 2.

Prime mercantile paper, 426 per cent. Sterling exchange was quiet but steady at $4.85% for sixty-day bills and $4.87% for demand. The total sales of stocks were 114,031 shares, including the following: Atchison, 2,565; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 2,440; Delaware & Hudson, 5,560; Erie, 3,500; Northwestern, 2,300; New England, 2,300; Reading, 45,400; Richmond & West Point,

5,200; Union Pacific, 2,253. Had it not been for the coal stocks, Sugar and Tennessee Coal, Saturday, the stock market would have been utterly devoid of feature and movement. Outof those few shares the trading was entirely nominal and the flucopening prices were practically unchanged. There was some disposition on the part of the traders to hammer Reading, and its price did recede slightly under this pressure, while Tennessee Coal displayed positive weakness, retiring 14 per cent. Later, however, the rumor was circulated that two or three directors were to go into the board of the Delaware & Hudson, representing the Vanderbilts, and this, coupled with some good buying, had the effect of creating a little bear scare, and the shorts in the coal stocks ran to cover. Delaware & Hudson was rapidly run up from 13912 to 14314, Jersey Central following with a rise from 139 to 1414. while the movements in Reading and Lackawanna were more deliberate. The movement, however, had the effect of infusing a little life and character into the general list, and slight appreciation was made in prices, especially after the issue of the bank statement, which showed an unexpected small increase in the reserves. No other feature was seen, however, and the market finally closed dull but firm, practically at Friday night's prices, ex-

being up 24 and Jersey Central 14. Railroad bonds were very quiet, and, as usual of late, the fluctuations were insignificant, especially among the more prom-inent issues. The Reading thirds and the Richmond & West Point trust fives were fairly active, but the whole day's trading amounted to only $625,000. Among the few changes of note Delaware, Lackawanna & Western firsts lost 2 per cent. at 127, and Memphis & Charleston sixes 2, at 984. State bonds were neglected.

TWO RESTAURANT ROBBERS. A Pair of Well-Dressed Rascals Obtain

Hearty Meals at a Low Figure. New York Telegram. The better class of restaurants of the West Side have been subjected to a petty swindle perpetrated by two well-dressed young men lately, which quite likely has entailed a much greater loss to the places victimized than may be supposed, as it is not known just how long the trick has been in operation. A waiter in one of the first-class cafes on scribes the workers of this species of the "firm-flam game" as being good dressers, in dark ciothes and derby hats of a distinctly English style. One carries a rather large cane with bone handle, and the other a slender, silver-handled umbrella. Both are light complexioned, and while one wears a pointed beard, the other has only a weak mustache. It is not known that they have been seen together.

Their manner of defrauding the eating saloons is thus described: One enters, picks out a table where no other customer is sitting, or where some one is about to finish eating, and unobtrusively sits down and orders a square meal, first telling the waiter that he is very hungry and must have a good, large portion of each order. Tenderloin steak and mushrooms, !yoanaise potatoes, omlette souffle, a pot of coffee and a couple of long Garcias are the articles represented in his check. Several minutes after he gives his order and while reading his paper, in comes the other "pal," who sits opposite to him at the same table, but they act as strangers. Shortly the first order is set out before Gentleman Beat No. 1, and Gentleman Beat No. 2 orders "a cup of tea and some dry toast, please." The eating continues

At the proper time they manage to get acquainted, and No. 1 divides his food with No. 2, who finally lingers reading the paper passed him by No. 1, who finishes his meal and retires. On passing out No. 1 hands to the cashier the check given by the waiter to No. 2, representing only a cup of tea and some dry toast. The cashier takes the small change, and No. 1 disappears into the street.

Ten or fifteen minutes afterward No. 2 discovers that his check is larger than it should be. He goes to the cashier's desk in a rage, curses the new acquaintance, declares that one can never tell a man by his clothes, and expresses astonishment at one being liable to such dangers in a first-class shop. The cashier pacifies him, makes his check all right, the house shouldering the loss in the difference in the amounts of the check, and he passes out to meet his friend and enjoy the other cigar.

A Writer's Grievance.

Critic Lounger. I am always glad to give a hearing to the wronged writer, and therefore when Mr. Leander S. Keyser, of Springfield, O., complains in The Writer that he has been treated unkindly by the editor of "a magazine which pretends to high literary merit," I am glad to help him by calling the attention of other editors to his grievance. It seems that Mr. Keyser sent to an editor a manuscript "consisting of only thirteen pages." He had "folded it twice across the width and sent it in an envelope of the ordinary size, such as most business men use in their correspondence." Now see what happened: "It came back in a long, narrow envelope, and was, therefore, folded lengthwise, with an ugly crease near the middle." Was this not hard? It was, indeed; nor was this all. He had to have it "copied on the typewriter," which cost him 75 cents. "Had I not cause for righteous indignation against that editor," exclaims Mr. Keyser, "and was I wrong in vowing never to purchase another copy of his magazine!" Mr. Keyser certainly had cause for indignation; but did he not go to extreme measures of revenge when he stopped buying the magazine! He doesn't say which magazine it was whose editor folded his manuscript lengthwise; but let us hope that the circulation of neither Harper's. the Century, the Atlantic, Scribner's, Lippincott's, nor the Cosmopolitan is to be reduced by one copy. Let the editors of these magazines be warned, if not too late, to refold rejected manuscripts only in the old Iowa Republicans Are for Harrison. Des Moines Special to Chicago Tribune. The twenty-six votes of lows in the Minneapolis convention will be cast solidly for Benjamin Harrison. They will go to the convention without instruction, but utterance in the convention, every expresevery bit of talk in and around the hotels points in the one direction. The mere fact that in the minds of some existed a suspicion that Mr. Clarkson was unfriendly to the President was almost enough to cause his defeat as one of the delegates at large. This honor had been conceded him by every one, but this morning little knots and groups of the grangers discussed among themselves the propriety of sending Mr. Clarkson as delegate at large when they grew into what seemed to be a conflagration, and it required the best efforts of all of Mr. Clarkson's chosen friends to prevent his defeat. As it was, he received a majority of all the votes cast, with a hundred or more to spare, but his strength was so depleted as to leave no doubt of the minds of the delegates. So Mr. Clarkson goes to Minneapolis with a binding reminder of the will of the party in this State. He could not if he would get a single vote away from Harrison, and will find himself in trouble if he fails to obey the wishes of the convention. Going to Extremes.

New York Weekly. Mrs. Newwed-My dear, as you said we must do everything possible to economize, I have been at work turning my old dresses and I can make most of them do another year. It won't take me over six weeks to get through, and then I'll reshape and retrim my old bonnets. Mr. Newwed-That's very sensible, I

Mrs. Newwed-I have also been trying some waxed thread and a coarse peedle on my old shoes, and I believe they'll last six months longer; and I've turned that old carpet we bought second-hand, and given it a thorough washing, so that it will do very nicely; and I'm going to make some curtains for the up-stairs windows, to avoid buying new ones.

Mr. Newwed-Eminently sensible, my Mrs. Newwed-And I've sent off the washerwoman and discharged the hired girl. I will do all the work myself.

Mr. Newwed-You're an angel, my love. Mrs. Newwed-And I took that box of imported eigars you bought and traded them for two boxes of cheaper ones. Mr. Newwed-Now, see here! Economy is a good thing, but there is no need of your becoming an unreasonable, fanatical monomaniac on the subject.

True Love. A young man, at the risk of his life, saved a beautiful girl from drowning. Her grateful father seized the rescuer of his daughter by the hand, and, in a yoice trembling with emotion, said: "Noble youth, to you I am indebted for everything that makes life dear to me. Which reward will you take-$200, "00 or the hand of my daughter?" "I'll take the daughter." replied the heroic rescuer, thinking thereby to get both the girl and the money. "You have well chosen," replied the grateful father. "I could have given you the $200,000 just yet. anyhow, as I have not laid up that amount, being only a poor editor, but my daughter is yours for life. Take her and be happy.

God bless you, my children." Pa Was Equal to the Emergency. New York Ledger.

Pardridge Sold Wheat for All He Was Worth, but the Price Crept Upward.

The Further Fall in Chicago Grain Promised Friday Failed to Materialize, and Operators Were Not Afraid to Buy.

TRADING AT CHICAGO. May Wheat Closes at 8514c, but Corn Touches

Its Lowest Figures. CHICAGO, March 19 .- Pardridge had his force of brokers marshaled three deep and all selling wheat around the northwest corner of the pit this morning. He kept them busy, and it was said that three million bushels would not exaggerate their sales. Linn & Dwight, P. D. Armour & Co. and other elevator interests were buy-Sixth avenue, near Twenty-third street, de- | ing. The Southwest also purchased heavily, and at the close the profit in selling short at 84c was not apparent. After an early break to 84c, May wheat rallied to and closed at 854c, or %c higher than it did yesterday. Corn was weak early and firm toward the close, but left off at a shade under Friday's resting price. Hog products continued to wallow in the rut into which they tumbled yesterday, but closed at some recovery from the lowest prices of the day. A great many came to business with their bull clothes on, but a declining market the first hour took the enthusiasm out of those who first plunged in to buy, and they sold out at a loss. They were met by the scalping tactics of Pardridge He so.d until the market broke, then bought in some wheat and sold again on every attempt to advance. Wheat started easier at from 4c to 3sc under the price it closed yesterday. The decline was due principally to the early discouraging news from abroad. There was another severe cold wave brewing in the Northwest, which helped to sustain the courage of those dis-posed to the bull side of the market, but the public cablegram from Liverpool reported that market quiet, with a poor demand, and prices unchanged in some positions and 'ad lower in others. Minneapol's and Duluth receipts were 537 cars, against 328 cars a week ago. Export clearances for the week from both coasts were reported by Bradstreet's as 62,000 bushels more than on the previous week, but from the Atlantic coast the shipments fell 491,800 bushels short of those of the week before. New York messages received early in the day were lugubrious in their tone, and reported foreigners as selling lately-purchased wheat, and a general lack of orders at anywhere near the market. Later, however, their tone changed, and reports came to hand of foreign purchases made at the sea-board for the shipment to the continent as far forward as to September next, appearing to indicate that Europe and continental buyers were not reluctant to take account of the poor prospects for the coming year. The opening price for May was from 84% @84% c, against 84% @85c at the close yeiterday. Pardridge and many of those who bought on yesterday's break had wheat for sale at the opening and overloaded the early buyers, with the result of causing a decline to 84c. The fact of the late cables showing less demoralization abroad than earlier dispatches appeared to foreshadow caused a renewal of the buying and an advance to the former highest point.

> companied by buying orders. Pardridge's selling was on a heavy scale, but so was the aggregate of the buying. The latter increased toward the close at the time when the big short selling brokers were becoming tired, and there was an advance to 85 4c, which was the price at the close. The market developed great strength be-fore the close. The trade began to look more seriously on the crop news. There was buying here to cover a line of July for Kauffman, of St. Louis. There was buying by all the smaller shorts here. The commission houses bought right up to the close and kept the wheat. Phillips, Linn, Cudahy and Seaverns, with many others, were buyers. At the last Pardridge withdrew his brokers, who were selling all the way up, and the market closed very strong. The May price went to 854c and closed at 854s

The frost damage reports also came fast

and furious, and, as on the day before, acto 844c. July forged ahead and closed at 120 premium, at 854c. The corn trade forced the May price to 38c the first hour of the session. This was the low point of the day, and of the year. The break was chiefly the result of the heavy movement, and the promise of continued cold weather which may further increase receipts. The severe cold weather extending down to Texas, which was declared loudly to have destroyed the prosrects for a crop in the South next season, was their votes will be for Harrison. Every one of the points being remarked upon in the pit. With this there was a further rally sion among the men elected as delegates, in sympathy with wheat toward the close, and 38% c was the trading price as the bell

New York Commercial Advertiser. The table decorations at a luncheon to be given by a young matron during Lent will consist of pure sweet lilies and yellow daf-fodils. The stems of the lilies are to be left a few inches longer than the height of the vase which will contain them. Just at the mouth of the vase and around the stems of the lilies the daffodils are to be arranged so as to appear as a bed for the lovely waxen lilies with their yellow centers, which are exactly the color of the daffodils. At the plate of each guest will be laid a spray of lilies of the valley, with a green leaf and a daffodil. For the Writing-Desk.

Silver appointments for writing-desks. beautiful as they are, find formidable rivals in those of cut glass and bronze. The weight of the glass, and its exquisite patterns, makes it a favorite. It has another very important recommendation -that of being easily cleaned. Inkstands, candle-sticks, pen-trays, seals, paper-weights etc., are so generally accepted as suitable for gifts, that we have become critical in reference to them. Those in golden bronze are quaint in shape, with ornamentation of leaves. flowers, vines and cupids. A set in shell form is particularly attractive, having seaweed, fishes and a mermaid; another, cottage style, with trailing vines of morningglories, with the blossoms over every article. The ends of the handles of seal, peaholder, etc., have settings of topaz, garnets and amethyst. Antique heads in choral were the decoration of a set in sterling silver recently sent as a wedding gift.

WHAT WOMEN WILL WEAR.

Bell Skirts, Russian Blouses and Quantities of Jet Are Features of Spring Style. Dry Goods Economist.

Among the newest garnitures are the kilts or girdles that are of various sizes for the front of the bodice, which trim a gown most elegantly. These are pointed in front and shorter on the side, or vice versa. The fringe may reach the bottom of the skirt or only extend six inches below the waistline in single, triple or knotted strands. The girdle reaches only to the second darts or may extend to the back, the avorite one ending at the side seams of the bodice. The bodice is another jet arrangement designed as well as the girdle to draw money from admiring shoppers, and re-styles are of this alluring jet, and some in the Henri II style end in cap-shaped epaulets, or long pieces in front that finish in ornaments at the waist-line. The jet suspenders are crossed in the back and tipped with ornaments in front like a genuine article dressed in masquerade costume. Single ornaments of great beauty and long fringe are united to form hand-some girdles, which article gives the longwaisted, tapering form now universally desired, while the pointed fringe to the sembles an enlarged girdle without the fringe. Flaring collars of many sizes and skirt edge in front apparently adds to the height. The Russian blouse will be one of the favorite garments for young ladies and early street suits. The long, plain skirt will not "begone," and it seems to require a deep-skirted basque or waist, which is supplied by this imported design, the Rus-sian blouse. The flecked and corded goods look better after this style than the striped goods, but there are yet many fashious left that are appropriate for them.

A gray woolen fabric flecked with white has a "bell" skirt and Russian blouse, the latter having a yoke, belt and sleeves of gray bengaline, with sleeve caps, Russian blouse and skirt of the cheviot. A border of the silk also trims the skirt, with a heading of jet passementerie in a wavy scroll. This lovely garniture tinishes the collar, yoke, opening on the left side, lower edge of the blouse, which is if teen inches below the waist-line, wrists and bottom of the sleeve caps, which extend nearly to the bend of the elbow, and covers the entire belt.

Another suit has a ruffle of the goods upon the skirt, and the yokeless blouse is finished on all edges with a silk moss trimming. The buttons and belt buckle in this case are of smoked pearl. A dress of navyblue stripes divided by a hair-line of black has a coat-tail basque and round point, double breasted front, with pearl buttons and a binding of black worsted braid. Nothing new in the way of sleeves has come up except the cap that was supposed to belong to the Russian blouse until Parisian modistes got hold of it and de-fitting close below the elbow. This cap is full over the shoulder and reaches nearly to the bend of the elbow, with a trimming on the lower edge.

The plain "bell" skirt has apparently become too firmly rooted to be easily ousted from fayor, though they are now trimmed with a deep border to do away with much of the excessively plain appearance. A new back shows the material that is usu-

creed that it should be worn on any sleeve

ally cut off in forming the bias seam left on and arranged in jabot folds down the Bias borders of the ress material are from five to ten inches deep and have several rows of stitching at the top. All skirts continue to touch, nay worse, to drag, except a few that the tailors are trying to force that escape the floor. The seamless skirt is wide enough to make up crosswise of the goods with the left side of the back turned forward like a half handkerchief and the other side lapped upon the turned down part, with large buttons holding it in position and the upper part fitted with V's, as usual, and plaits at the center back.

Round waists are in vogue, with corselets that are round or pointed below the waistline, cut down in a V at the top edge, which is just below the bust, and tapered to a width of two inches at the pack, where it joins under a knot of silk that then falis in two fringed ends to the edge of the skirt. Coat and pointed backs are worn with corselet fronts, and full fronts and backs are made into a point, back and front, with ribbon folded along the lower edge and tied in long end loops at the back.

The City Librarianship. To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal:

Your editorial of Saturday voices the sentiments of the majority of the most cultured people in this city of churches, schools and clubs when you ask that the librarian, Mr. Charles Evans, be retained. Years of experience, a genius for the work. a courtesy in aiding all who wish to avail themselves of the resources of the library, are some of the reasons why his place would be hard to fill. The founders of the library, notably, the late Mr. John D. Howland, recognized his eminent fitness for the work. Congress has wisely con-tinued Mr. Spofford at the head of the Congressional Library through many changes CO., 33 West Market street, Indianapolis, Ind. of administration. When the new library building is finished, it is this man of exceptional talent for cataloguing and arranging books who will be able to bring order out of the chaos that reigns in the capital. A similar state of things exists in Indianapolis. It will be for the School Board to consider whether it is wise "to swap horses while crossing the stream."

JACKSON, Mich., March 19 .- James Gallagher, sentenced to twenty-five years for assault, and Joseph Butler, the colored burgular and thief, both of Detroit, escaped from Jackson prison this morning. Gallagher was caught and returned to the prison within an hour, but Butler escaped to the woods. A large force of deputies and prison attaches are searching the woods, and Butler's recapture is almost a cer-
